Revenue Cycle Management

Revenue cycle management (RCM) is the process which includes the generation of an accurate claim, submission of a claim, payment on a claim, and posting of a claim hence collecting revenue of services being rendered. It entails the use of technology to track the claims being processed through each stage of its life cycle so the healthcare provider doing the billing can follow the process and address any issues, allowing for a continuous stream of revenue generation. The flowchart below covers these steps in more detail.

We customize these services based on your office needs in an effort to optimize your financial position. An increase of revenue will allow you to not only grow, but also better serve your patient population.
